1. What is your topic and who is the target audience?

   The topic is a fictional / proposed transportation system that goes under the ocean and connects different continents. The target audience can be either 1. A fictional future traveler trying to get information about this train system, 2. A What-if look into the future for people interested in sci-fi and transit systems, or 3. A VC pitch deck that promises a pie in the sky project.

2. Identify lenses we have discussed in class that your topic may rely on most

   The subject of the project is speculative in nature. It would also be an utopian narrative in cases 1 and 2 (more dystopian in 3 as it would be more cynical and be more like a commentary on VC culture. See example: hyperloop)

3. What are some of the features you imagine your project/product would include?

   I think some possible features can be a mockup of ticket choices, or animated maps, or sleek looking animated "revenue projections".

4. Are there possible tangents, challenges, concerns, or vague ideas related to your ideas? (It could go this direction... I am not sure about X, and I don't know how I might deal with Y).

   I am not sure if this is what the project is asking for.
